Cardinal von Faulhaber of Munich, a report of whose arrest has been proved to be untrue. A close watch is, however, being kept on movements from his palace.

VON PAPEN STAFF RELEASED

WEEDING-OUT PROCESS IN GERMANY

THE DEATH-ROLL

(Special to "Telegraph")
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages, Ordinance, 1931. Received July 7, 8.15 a.m.)

Berlin, July 6.
It is officially announced that three members of Captain von Papen's staff, who were arrested during the week-end, have been released from custody "after they had proved that they had no connection with the plotters."

Herr Hitler is strenuously engaged in efforts to stabilise the situation, weeding out the suspects in "small doses," with a view, probably, to averting the upheaval that might follow if the problem was tackled on a big scale all at once.

There is a strong belief that the number of victims of the "clean-up" is greatly in excess of the official figure.

UNOFFICIAL ROLL CALL

Reports gathered from several provincial cities and from Berlin by a non-German source place the total of prominent persons dead and missing since Saturday, throughout the Reich, at 241.

A large number of these, however, cannot be verified beyond doubt and it is possible that the total is far too high owing to the confused circumstances still surrounding many of the arrests and disappearances.

It is reported that the official list in process of preparation contains the names of 65 persons executed in all parts of the Reich up to the present time.—United Press.

CARDINAL ARREST RUMOUR

Untrue: But Under Surveillance

Berlin, July 6.
It was persistently rumoured in Berlin to-night that Cardinal Faulhaber, of Munich, had been arrested.

It has been established that the report is untrue, but a very close watch is being kept on the Cardinal's Palace, where detectives are carefully noting all persons entering and leaving.

As the Papal Legate, the Cardinal enjoys the privileges of extraterritoriality.—Reuter.

Three Chinese, Wong Ho, Lau Yuk-lin and Lau Yuk-kui, living at No. 575 Canton Road, have been removed to the Kowloon Hospital suffering from food poisoning. It is reported.

SIX OF TEAM AFFECTED

SORE THROATS AND SICKNESS

ALL BATSMEN!

London, July 7.
A mysterious epidemic appears to have struck the Australian cricket team.

Following the retirement from the field at Manchester of Bradman and Chipperfield, two of their most outstanding fielders, placing them at a disadvantage in the afternoon, four other members reported themselves unwell.

They are W.M. Woodfull, the captain, W.H. Ponsford, opening batsman, W.A. Brown, and A. Kippax, the latter not in the Test XI.

All complain of sore throats and sickness.

Bradman and Chipperfield are the most seriously affected and are no better. If they recover in time to play they will probably be kept back as late as possible in the batting order.—Reuter.

Later.

It is understood that Woodfull, Ponsford and Brown are suffering from the complaint in very minor form and it is hoped that they will be quite fit to play to-day.—Reuter.

SURPRISE FOR PRINCE OF WALES

Blind Girl and Shorthand Machine

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages, Ordinance, 1931. Received July 7, 8.15 a.m.)

London, July 6.
When H.R.H. the Prince of Wales opened the Institute of Massage Physiotherapy for the Blind in West London to-day, he was surprised to hear that a blind girl had made a verbatim report of his speech on a shorthand machine.

At the Prince's request she read back her notes with astonishing celerity.

She is capable of writing two hundred words a minute.—Reuter.

The New Life Movement Club has made arrangements with Miss Yeung Shau King, the famous Hong-kong Chinese girl swimmer, for a visit here to participate in swimming contests. Miss Yeung will leave Hong-kong together with her father and sister, Miss Yeung Shau Chien, on July 14.—Central News.

STOP PRESS

It is learned that the naval officer to whom a telephone hoax call was traced as the result of the investigation of the recent epidemic, was sent home yesterday afternoon in H.M.S. Berwick.

THE FINAL STAGES

WIMBLEDON DOUBLES RESULTS

FRANCE TO THE FORE

London, July 6.
Perry's brilliant victory over Crawford in the men's singles was the only outstanding British success at Wimbledon to-day.

The home representatives were eliminated from both the men's doubles and the women's doubles. In the mixed doubles, only R. Miki's pairing with Miss Dorothy Round interrupted an all-British contest to reach the final.

Collins and Wilde, the men's doubles hopes, clashed with the famous French holders, Borotra and Brugnon, in the semi-final and faded out after capturing the second set.

Borotra and Brugnon seem well set for their third successive victory. They meet Lott and Stoecken in the final to-morrow.

SURPRISE RESULT

The most surprising result of the day was the failure of Mrs. Godfree and Miss Scriven against Mrs. Andrus and Mme. Henrotin of France, though the French pair's success against Miss Jacobs and Miss Palfrey perhaps hinted that the French pair were much better harmonised than they had been given credit for.

A terrific fight was witnessed in the second set which went to twenty-two games before the French pair broke through.

MEN'S DOUBLES. SEMI-FINALS.

J. Borotra and J. Brugnon, holders (France), beat G.C. Collins and F.H.D. Wilde (Britain), 7-5, 6-3, 6-2, 6-4.
G. M. Lott and L. Stoecken (U.S.A.) defeated H. O. Hopman (Australia) and D. Prens (Russia), 6-4, 4-6, 6-3, 8-6.

MIXED DOUBLES. SEMI-FINALS.

Quarter-Final—R. Miki and Miss Round beat I. Aoki and Miss Hardwick, 6-2, 6-2.

H. W. Austin and Mrs. Shepherd-Barrow (Britain), beat J. S. Olliff and Miss Joan Ingram (Britain), 6-4, 6-1.
R. Miki (Japan) and Miss Dorothy Round (Britain) beat H. G. N. Lott and Miss F. James (Britain), 6-3, 6-2.

WOMEN'S DOUBLES. SEMI-FINALS.

Mrs. Andrus and Mme. Henrotin (France) beat Mrs. L.A. Godfree and Miss Scriven (Britain) 6-3, 12-10.
Mme. Mathieu and Miss Ryan (France), holders, beat Miss Payot (Switzerland) and Miss Thomas (Britain), 7-6, 6-0.—Reuter.

NAVAL STRATEGY

TORPEDOES TO BE REMOVED

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages, Ordinance, 1931. Received July 7, 9.25 a.m.)

Washington, July 6.
An interesting change is being made in the equipment of cruisers in the United States Fleet on the advice of naval experts.

It is learned that the Navy Department has authorised the removal of all torpedoes from the 10,000-ton cruisers of the Indianapolis type in connection with a modernisation programme which is being carried out parallel with the new construction programme.

Naval experts are convinced that torpedoes are not capable of being put to effective use from large-type cruisers. They hold that craft of the 10,000-ton type are never likely to find themselves in a position to use their torpedoes accurately in a sea battle, and for this reason, the torpedoes may become really a menace to the ship than an effective weapon of attack.

POTENTIAL DANGER

A direct hit on a loaded torpedo tube from an enemy gun would very likely cause the torpedo to blow up and inflict very heavy casualties on the ship's complement, as well as, possibly, disabling the ship.
The removal involves eight cruisers built prior to 1932.
It is learned that naval experts are planning to substitute other equipment that may be put to a more practical use, although it is not intended to go beyond Treaty limitations.—United Press.

DEATH OF MR. J.M. WALKER

CHARTERED BANK OFFICIAL

TRAGIC NEWS FOR WIDOW

Widespread regret will be felt at the news of the death of Mr. J. M. Walker, sub-manager of the Hongkong office of the Chartered Bank, which occurred at the War Memorial Hospital in the early hours of this morning.

The late Mr. Walker, who was 46 years of age, was admitted to hospital a little over a month ago and his condition has been grave for some time past, so much so that his wife, who had been at home, was recently cabled for. She made the trip to Singapore by air, and is due in Hongkong on Tuesday next. Much sympathy will be felt for her in the heavy bereavement which she has suffered.

Mr. Walker had been in the service of the Chartered Bank for about 27 years, of which 24 years were spent in the Far East, chiefly in Hongkong and Canton. On his last transfer he came here from Canton, where he had on many occasions been in charge, some four months ago. He was a most capable and conscientious official, whilst socially he enjoyed much popularity.

A prominent member of the Royal Hongkong Golf Club, he had represented the Colony against Manila, and although he never attained championship rank locally, he was a good all-round player. He was also keenly interested in amateur theatricals, and in April last he figured in the A.D.C. production of "The First Mrs. Fraser," taking the part of James Fraser and scoring a big success. The funeral takes place this evening, passing the Monument at 5 p.m.

SHANGHAI GETS RELIEF

YELLOW RIVER RISING

GRAND CANAL OVERFLOWS

Shanghai, July 7.
The queerest climatic conditions are being experienced in Central and North China.

Although Shanghai has been afforded respite in consequence of a slight slackening of the heatwave, other districts in Southern Kiangsu, Chokiang and the Yangtze Valley are still in the grip of extreme aridity and are sweltering under a blistering sun.

On the other hand, torrential rains have continued for several days in the Yellow River valley, particularly in the region of its old bed, running across the northern sector of Kiangsu.

Flood waters over the area of Hanchow and surrounding districts have not receded, and Hanchow is now threatened as the Yellow River continues to rise. Huge volumes of water are rushing down from the upper reaches of the Yellow River and a number of dykes have collapsed, causing extensive flooding.

CANAL IN FLOOD

The Grand Canal is in a similar condition and has overflowed at several points in Shantung, where the heaviest rains have been witnessed in the past two or three days.

A message from Sianfu states that an extensive area in southern Shensi is flooded as the result of torrential rains, especially in the area around Ankang. Property losses suffered there are estimated at over one million dollars. The weather experienced at Sianfu is changeable, but an intense heat has now persisted for some days.

The heatwave at Lanchow was broken when heavy rain occurred yesterday morning, following which the mercury has considerably fallen.—Central News.

Almost at the same time, a fire broke out in another pit in the same district, burning one miner to death and causing injuries to three. The fire was quickly put out.—Central News.

CHECK ON BUCKET SHOPS

"FUTURE" GAMBLING PROHIBITED

NEW ORDINANCE

The Gazette contains the draft of an Ordinance to regulate and control exchanges, the purpose of which is to make illegal such concerns, which are generally known as "bucket shops," as the Chinese Produce Exchanges, a feature of the local market in 1921, and the Gold Bar Exchanges which have been operated recently in the Colony.

Features of the Ordinance are that it:

Forbids gambling in "futures" in respect of metals, currencies and commodities generally. It does not prohibit the buying or selling forward of stocks and shares.

NO ADVERTISING

Prohibits the opening and keeping of any place, and the advertising, etc., of facilities, for the purposes of such gambling in "futures".

Places alders and abettors on the same footing as principal offenders. Makes the consent of the Attorney General a condition precedent to the institution of proceedings.

Throws the onus of disproving intent to make profit and absence of bona fide intention to make or receive delivery on the defendant in criminal proceedings under this Ordinance.

EXEMPTIONS

Exempts from the operation of the Ordinance agents or brokers operating in the Colony for exchange concerns outside the Colony. Similarly makes this Ordinance inapplicable to exchange transactions effected by or with Banking Companies and Corporations.

Empowers the Governor by Order in Council to exempt from the operation of the Ordinance such persons and business concerns as he deems fit.

Keep On Toes If You'd Attain Slim Ankles

This is the correct position to assume in beginning the ankle-reducing exercise.

By Alicia Hart

Modern women, generally speaking, are ankle-conscious. Why shouldn't they be? For centuries, poets have sung about the beauties of ankles that are trim and shapely and fiction's heroines invariably are endowed with the slim and reed-like brand. If your ankles do not measure up to such high standards, exercises will do much to whip them into shape.

One special ankle-reducing exercise benefits the legs and feet as well as the ankles, making them supple and graceful and, consequently, more comfortable. Toes that are stiff and cramped often cause painful foot ailments.

Here's the exercise: Placing hands on hips and keeping heels together, stand as high as possible on the tips of your toes. Hold that position while you count to ten and then lower the heels. Repeat ten times and then ten more again very rapidly.

The exercise should be done night and morning, increasing the number of times until you are doing it 100 times a day.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

TRY THIS FOR RELAXING EYES

By Alicia Hart

The greatest beauties of all time have been particularly noted for their calm, relaxed and almost placid expressions. And modern women will do well to realize that rested and restful-looking beauty is preferable to the variety that is tired, worn and slightly haggard.

Unless a girl gets the proper amount of sleep, she can't expect to be fresh and beautiful the following day. Remember that lack of sleep causes lines around the mouth.

In addition to enough sleep each night, everyone, if it is at all possible, should take a short rest period sometime during the day. A twenty minute nap after lunch makes the afternoon seem pleasanter and does wonders for your skin, eyes and general beauty. And don't forget about that short nap just before you go out in the evening.

When you've finished your bath and removed most of the nourishing cream from face and throat, lie flat on your back and cover your eyes with pads that have been dipped in a soothing eye lotion. You don't need to sleep but keep eyes closed and really relax. The eye lotion will make your eyes clear and sparkling—the short rest will make the corners of your mouth turn up instead of down.

YOUR CHILDREN

Children Suffer When Parents Quarrel

By Olive Roberts Barton

A mother asks me to write about mothers and fathers quarrelling. "I have some neighbours," she says, "whose children live in perpetual misery because their parents fight, and the whole neighbourhood can hear them."

No wonder these children are wretched. It is bad enough to have combative parents, but worse still when they know that everybody else knows about it. It is humiliating beyond words.

A week or two ago I read of three married couples quarrelling so actively at a dance in a decent hotel that police aid had to be summoned.

A nice state of affairs. Whether or not they have any children, I do not know, but if they have, no comment is necessary. We ask our children to respect us. If we have no respect for ourselves, how can we expect our offspring to have it?

Taking Sides.

But quarrelling in the home before the family is even worse than making a show of ourselves out among strangers.

If there is any place on earth where there should be peace, it is around the hearth, or at the dinner table.

There is another angle to it, too, that is terrifically hard on the children. A mother expects them to side with her and hate their father. He expects them to side with him and hate their mother. And the poor kids caught between the devil and the seashore, don't know what to do.

Marriage brings its moments of dissension and disagreement, of course. Few people can live together eternally without a difference of opinion now and then. It goes even deeper than that. Women are likely to brood because they think they have the hard end of it and are not appreciated. There's John looking about and not bringing in enough money to buy oleo for the bread—or a new diamond ring—depending on the ideas of Sally, or Sue or Sarah.

Parental Conflict.

John may be doing all he can but he can't seem to make good. A man's best isn't always his wife's idea of best, and heaven knows most of them are not gifted with the super-human energy it takes to make good these days.

Anyway, how can John, made as he is, compete with all the other smart men? How can he compete with unemployment? John is up against it right.

Sally on the other hand, sees that the less John works, the harder she has to. Not only that, but she has to do without almost everything. All work and no thanks and no nothing will curdle the cream of almost any disposition.

She broods and gets nervous and bottled up and then she is ready for attack. On the other hand, after John has worn himself out with work, or hunting work (it's all the same) he finds it insufficient. The burden is too great. He finds his utmost efforts criticized or unappreciated. And he, too, gets nervous and bottled up and then there is a battle.

Hate Won't Help.

We are all human. Every husband and wife make mistakes every day. Sins of omission rather than commission, or just nerves gone haywire.

But hate won't help; nastiness won't help; criticism won't help. It will ruin the children and make home a mad house. It is so useless. It shows weakness of character. We have to learn to endure and to cooperate with our mates, even though we think they have failed. It is marriage. It is parenthood. It is just common decency.

It has to be done.

CHAPTER XLV

When Gypsy got off the train she could see the blue line of the Sound far to the left. She drew a long breath. She held David up to see and he blew an ecstatic bubble as she lifted him into the lone taxi drawn up beside the station platform. In the clear wash of mid-summer sunlight the outlines of her surroundings were sharply etched. Scrub oak and evergreens against a background of white, white sand. Beyond a straggling road to the beach. After the train wound away there was silence here, utter and complete, and the girl in the blue linen frock with the white capped baby on her knee, shivered.

Her thoughts, released, sprang back once more toward what she had been feeling. Was she, really, a deserted wife? Was she "the unknown woman" whom, presumably, reporters and detectives sought in the death of Derek Bliss? Ridiculous! And yet, grinning, it was true. She was trembling with fatigue. The day had been a long one, with a journey by train, by ferry, by yet another train, but her physical sensations were blotted out by an agony of mind which comprehended that all her running away was of no actual avail. One could not run away from oneself!

The taxi jolted over the bumps. This particular road was unspeakable and the driver glanced back at her over his shoulder, grinning a sort of apology. He was a rough-looking fellow in a ragged coat. She did not remember having seen him at Wading Hollow before. All at once panic seized her. What was she doing in this expanse of sea and sky, alone with this small, adorable, dependent child?

She directed the driver. It was just a few hundred yards beyond, she said. Yes, the little house with the white gate. But as she alighted and took out her purse to pay him she saw no one. The green door was shut and rambler roses drooped over the gateway, withering unplucked. Gypsy thought the taxi driver looked at her oddly as he turned away. With the key which Tom had always kept in his top drawer she unlocked the door and stepped inside. She heard the chug-chug of the taxi with relief.

Well, at least she was here. After all her long, dispiriting, desperate day, she was safe within four walls. She put David down on the big, flat white bed in the small room opening out of the sitting room and lunged off her hat.

"Was he hungry? Did he want his supper?"

In her bag she had a few tins of pureed vegetables. There was a farm about a quarter of mile away, she remembered, where they had been accustomed to buy milk. Could she carry the baby all that way or dared she get him to sleep and leave him while she went to fetch it?

She lighted the water heater—thank heaven there was oil—and investigated the contents of the shelves. She had been pretty sure Rosina would have left some supplies. The beach shack was used as a sort of week-end place by all of them although really it belonged to Tom. Neither he nor Gypsy had visited it this year. Sure enough, there were a few scattered cans—one of peaches, a tin of tomato soup, a round container with salted crackers. There was tea in a blue canister. And, best of all, there were two cartons of cereal. David would have his supper, after all.

She debated about fencing him in with pillows and leaving him while she went for the milk but decided against it. You never knew what might happen. So, with the heavy baby on her arm, she started up the uneven road toward the farm. It was a longer way than she had remembered and she stumbled with weariness on the last few yards. She had passed no one on the road. It was a lonely place.

The Polish woman at the collapsing gray house looked at her curiously and brought milk in a tin pail. Sure, she could get it to-morrow. Sure, one of the boys would bring it around. Gypsy looked at the brood of tumbling children in the dooryard—two or three lank little girls and a tow-headed baby boy or two—and wondered if she might borrow one of the older children for the night. It would be company.

But that was silly, she reminded herself. She would be safe as safe. Her nerves were jumpy lately, that was all.

It was half past six when she got back to the house and David had begun to whimper.

He was hungry. He was bathed, fed and tucked away in the big bed before the tumbled girl in blue linen thought about her own supper. Besides, she wasn't hungry. She made herself some tea and choked down a few of the crackers. After she had tidied up she saw that the shadows were lengthening. In the silence of the place only the deep wash of the waves could be heard. Boom... Boom-oom!

She drew the shades and switched on the electricity. There were memories to haunt her in this little house—memories of two buoyant young people in a gold and blue September, beginning life together. The girl had been young and carefree and loving. The boy had adored her with every breath that he drew.

But there was no good going into all that now. The bright dreams had been broken and tarnished. Night had closed in around her. Gypsy was alone in this house with her memories and her regrets.

Fatigued beyond telling, she crept at last into the bed beside her sleeping child. It was a moonless night but the stars were out. From where she lay she could see the bright path they made across the sky. After a time she slept. She did not know how long she had been asleep (it was too dark to read the dial on her wrist watch) when she heard a slow, stealthy sound. Wakened, she sat bolt upright in the darkness, every nerve strained to hear. The sound came again. It was as if someone tried the outer door.

"It's probably a mouse," she told herself, but in her heart she knew it was not so. With crystal clarity she saw herself at every stage of her day's journey; on the train, the ferry, in the crosstown car, the taxi to Penn station and the train and the cab here. Ah, that was what she had been trying to remember—that driver's lean, rat-like face, the curious look he had fixed upon her as she had paid him! She had no one to call, no weapon. There was not even a telephone. Who ever heard of a beach house, used only four months of the year, with a telephone?

She could feel the nerves tingling along her spine. The child beside her stirred and breathed a long sigh and Gypsy held her breath. Whatever happened—whatever came to pass—she must not be terrified, her little son.

She threw her robe across her shoulders, trying to still the chattering of her teeth. It seemed to her they sounded like castanets in the dead silence of the room. Oh, God, send someone, she cried inwardly! But only the faint, far off splash of sea against sand replied.

With shaking knees she crept over the sill into the sitting room. She shut the door behind her. She had a flashlight in her hand, an old one of Tom's. For courage, as if to feel the touch of his warm fingers on her own, she held it close. The knob turned.

"Who's there?" she said clearly. There was no answer.

The door moved an inch. It was open. In that split second she screamed.

Tom drove like a man demented through the tunnel, and now he was on the streets of the city. There was only one thought in his mind and that was to get to Gypsy quickly, to get her right on the events of the past ten days. He knew her mercurial temperament well enough by this time to be fairly certain she had left her father's house that morning in a mood of complete desperation.

"What she might do, I can't think..." he said to himself and drove the faster for the black shadow that clamoured, unadmitted, at the door of his mind.

Without plan, without conscious thought he drew up at the entrance to the apartment where Hunt Gibson lived. He had been there just once, to see a pipe collection of Hunt's. He remembered with shame the last time he and Gibson had met. He had behaved like a churl but this was no time to stand back because of false pride. He would ask Hunt, simply and humbly, if he had any least idea where Gypsy might be.

Hunt was in. He wore a rather constrained air as Tom presented himself at the door. Tom made haste to state his case. The other man shook his head. He didn't know a thing, he said. Sue might. If Tom would step inside he would telephone her.

Tom lifted his brows when Hunt called Sue "darling" but he was relieved, just the same. Hunt said, "No, I don't think he's tried that." He put his hand over the mouthpiece. "She says, 'Have you thought of Wading Hollow?'"

Tom struck his palm into his hand. "What a consummate fool I am!" Gypsy had said she loved the cabin above all places. It might be that she had sought it out in her wild flight.

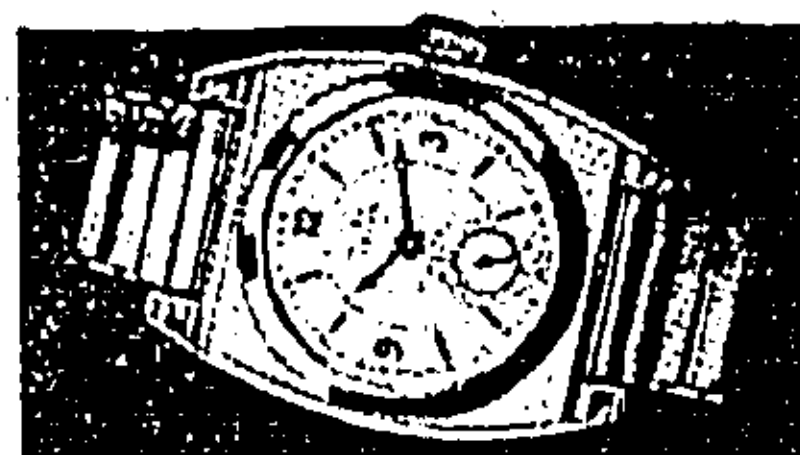

Hunt said, "Wait a second and face was eager. 'The Bliss story has quieted down,' he said as he got into the car. 'I wonder if Gypsy could possibly have worried about that. I hope not. I understand Broughton has hushed the whole thing up.' Hunt had, he continued, a lot of things he wanted to talk to Tom about on the way down. He and Sue were going to be married in the fall.

Tom scarcely heard. He was driving like wild now, out on the open road. His one thought was to get to Gypsy quickly.

DICTATORSHIPS AND DEMOCRACY

Events in Germany during the past week have served to attract attention once more to the fact that liberty and democracy
are experiencing a very thin
time in Europe at the moment.
Dictatorial governments, like small-pox, are contagious. Thus to-day free institutions are in greater danger of extinction than at any time since the days immediately following the Napoleonic Wars. Taking a glance at the political map of Europe, what do we find? Dictatorships prevail in Italy, Germany, Turkey, Bulgaria, Portugal, Austria and Hungary. Countries which stand halfway between democracy and dictatorship are Spain, Greece,
Estonia, Lithuania and Finland.
Free countries, where democracy
still functions freely, comprise England, France, Holland, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, the Scandinavian countries and Switzerland. But even in these free countries there are Fascist
parties seeking to tear down democratic government. The result has been that the governments of many of these countries
have found it necessary to pass laws forbidding the wearing of uniforms by political organizations. Denmark was the first to take action along these lines, a law being passed in April of last year which was twofold in its object—first, to prevent German Nazis in uniform from crossing the South Jutland frontier and indulging in political agitation;
secondly, to prevent Danish Fascists from wearing distinctive uniforms. Sweden quickly followed Denmark's example a few months later, whilst Norway also passed a law based on the Danish action, but specifically making exceptions in favour of Boy Scouts, athletic organisations
and the Salvation Army, as none
of these was a political organization. Holland last year added to its penal code a law forbidding
the wearing of political uniforms,
whilst Switzerland has acted similarly, and Belgium is considering similar action. In England, the Mosley Black Shirts
have come in for much condemnation, but so far the Government has not seen fit to prohibit the wearing of this distinctive uniform, possibly so as to deprive Mosley the advertisement of cheap martyrdom. None
the less, there is every reason why the authorities should suppress this movement, with which are associated military parades,
distribution of colours and the organisation of a defence force

NOTES OF THE DAY

CHINA'S DISUNITY

Dr. Wang Chung-hui, whose deep conviction of most of China's well-wishers in the forshadowing
gradual decline unless there emerges a common policy of reconstruction sincerely supported by all her present leaders. Unfortunately, there is nothing to encourage
hope that an enlightened viewpoint will prevail over petty local jealousies and intrigues. Chiang Kai-shek has made numerous efforts to placate the South; has gone a long way in concession; all to no avail. It is fairly well-known that General Ho Chien's mission, just concluded, has failed of its primary objective; that the implacable opposition of the South-West remains to paralyse effective progress towards a proper and vigorous ordering of governmental activity in Nanking. The unhappy position is reduced to absurdity when Canton demands more positive policies
from the central government and is not prepared to lend a hand or a cent to assist. Just now, Nanking is embarked upon the creation of a more democratic form of government with the drafting of a constitution calling for a National Assembly. Canton so far has remained silent, but if it remains true to precedent, objections will not be long in coming.

FRISCO RIOTS

The deplorable scenes of violence
in San Francisco will cause much heart-searching in the United States. Scores were shot down and many were badly gassed. Everything seems to have been done
by way of excessive counter-violence to aggravate the difficulties the forces of law and order were introduced to end. The strikers are deeply incensed by the alleged partisanship of the authorities in the employers' interest, in actively encouraging the strike breaking tactics, and charge Governor Merriman with using the State, in the guise of law, to break the morale of the labour side of an industrial dispute. In these circumstances, the mere threat of the employment of the National Guards must always be an incitement to greater passion and more serious
riot.

THE LEAGUE REPORTS

A popular report on the work accomplished by the League of Nations last year is issued by the Secretariat under the title "The League from Year to Year (1933)".
At a time when the news from Geneva is particularly depressing it is salutary to review such concrete results as have been obtained.
The report begins by announcing that "the year 1933 has been the most crowded and the most critical in League history, with two world conferences (one on disarmament
and economic questions), two sessions of the Assembly, and three major political disputes in the Far East and Latin America." The withdrawal of Germany and Japan from the League was slightly offset by the return of Argentina. Amongst the political disputes settled during the year that between Great Britain and Persia in regard to the Anglo-Persian Oil Company was a notable success. Of the concrete results obtained, prominence is given to the coming into force of the Manufacture and Regulating the Distribution of Narcotic Drugs.

NEW WORK

New work was created for the League by the exodus of refugees
from Germany, following the accession of Hitler to power, necessitating the appointment of a special High Commissioner and a new organisation to deal with the problem.
An exceptionally busy year is recorded for the Permanent Court of International Justice, no less than seven cases having been referred to it for judgment. It is well to be reminded from time to time of the extraordinarily valuable work which the Court is doing in settling these legal disputes, some of which if not so settled might easily develop into political disputes of first-class magnitude. In a word "The League from Year to Year" convinces that the League, disappointing though it may be as a result of the disinclination of its constituent members to put the collective principle to a real test,
remains, for the nonce, the only
bulwark against war and catastrophe.

and a flying corps—all signs of the military character of the organisation. Happily, the movement is not taken very seriously by the masses, but it is a menace to peace and order,
none the less. The dangers which lurk behind these reactionary political movements need no stressing. It is for the standard-bearers of democracy to see that their inheritance is preserved intact.

MR. PEPYS IN HONGKONG

June 29th.—An unpleasant day,
and I am very busy in my office,
and after writing in my chamber.
And so to bed.

30th.—This morning up betimes,
and did find the weather fair
enough, and, after I had trimmed myself, to my office, where I did labour at my papers with good heart, and after drank a glass or two at the Barre, where I did meet
Mr. Povy, who is mightily concerned with the state of Kowloon and the dogges, he thinking the attitude of so many of the owners to be contumacious, and selfish beyond bounds. For, as it seems,
there was a heavy story that a bitch be taken from the Hostelry,
which did have thought but a serious complaint, but is so evil entreated of the City Watch that she dies. And this tale (though I am well assured the master told it not), I had myself heard yesterday.
But later it is published in the newes-sheets that the bitch did indeed suffer from rabies and
moreover hath bitten an amah.
And, as Mr. Povy says, this doth but serve to show the naughty rumours that are set about by the malignous, who, as he supposes,
must have a congenial dislike to the Watch or any control whatever save their own lordly will. But,
in his opinion, such folk should not
live in a civilized community.
After nunchoon I doth rain for a time, and later, when I have got me to the Valley, the very flood-gates of heaven do seem to be opened, and all greens are very soon flooded. And so I do fall to playing at Auction Bridge, at which I have not played these many months. Won two florins, but I was hard put to it to remember the old calls. Then, it clearing later, I did walk home by the new Praya, which I have not before examined, and so to the Clubbe,
where I do take a bath, and after dine very pleasantly, and after that again reading in my chamber.

1st. July. (Lord's Day).—Lay late, but not so late as has been my wont these last few weeks, and so to ordering my books and garments as usual, but Lord! what a sad messe I do make of it with a needle! Out to nunchoon with a pretty company, which we do have a great and hot curry dish, as fine
as ever I ate in all my life. But,
from later consideration, I am in some doubt as to whether I did take too many or too few flagons of cool ale therewith. Much talk of the regulations, made public in the Gazette the day before, and it seems to be the general opinion of the company that a dogge cannot come within the category of an animal "similar with a horse or a mule". And I am sorry for
it. But I do hold it a cleanly thing to stop the swimming of ponies
at Deep Water Bay, which is so much used for human swimming.
After nunchoon I do close my eyes
for a space, and I fear do sleep
somewhat heavily. Talking before dinner upon the verandah of the Clubbe, we do recall that this year
for the first time these many seasons a British player has won the open Championship at Golfe,
of which I am right glad, as I did fear that Mr. H. Cotton had over-strained his skill in the qualifying rounds. Very grave news from Germany where as it seems flooddoth run like water, and I cannot believe that good shall come of this return to the bloodiest

methods of the Middle Ages.

2nd.—Up betimes, for though it be a holiday (that the Banques may order our over-drafts) yet I am no busy that I must needs get me to my office. Later, to the Clubbe, but it is a dull day until I do call upon Mistress Ann, who seems pretty well, but, as I did think, somewhat opinionastrel!
Reading in the evening newes
sheets, I do find a letter signed by one "Parish Pump". And I do consider the name to be most excellently well conceived. But, as for the contents, they do in one place appear to verge perilously
upon intimidation of the King's Servants, did one take them seriously. And I am therefore somewhat at a standstill after reading
the letter, as before I had been minded that the writer was a real lawyer, and as such, an officer of the Court. But now, of course, I know that it cannot be so, and I do perceive him to be little more skilled than I am myself, or it may be that he has had the benefit of a correspondence course upon the Law; which indeed I cannot claim,
having merely read the text books
but holding no diploma. Yet in deed and truth, I do trust that no
mad dogge shall prove so ungrateful as to bite him.

3rd.—Very busy all day, and no
time to read in the newes sheets
until while eating my nunchoon, which I take at my office. I like not the doings in Germany, which do call to my mind the saying as
to those who do take the sword.
To the Clubbe later, where much talk of changes in the Test team,
and I do misdoubt me of the wisdom of one who doth swappe
horses while crossing a ford.
Anon comes Creed, who tells me that Mr. U. Omar was bent yesterday in the Bowles singles, and I do gather there was a certain want of care in his play. This night I am very grieved to read of the death of my old friend Jack Hope,
as merry and kindly man as ever
I did know, and had been at the Races here these thirty years past.
May God rest him. News also comes locally of many dogges who have bitten people, and I can scarce sleep this night for sadness
at the thought of what pangs of indigestion such rich diet may cause each faithful Fido. And so,
very sad, to bed.

4th.—Very busy all day in my office, and writing later in my chamber.

5th.—Very hot but as there is a good breeze blowing it is not so unpleasant. But Lord! to see how I am thronged about with business,
so that I can but hardly find time to write over in my diary. This night Creed tells me that it is believed that one dogge hath bitten
two people in one day, and he doth understand that the "Dogges Owners' Association" intends to hold a convocation to vote that some civic distinction be bestowed upon the proud owner. But I am minded that this may be but a misguided effort of Creed's sense of humour and nonsense of dogges. Dined at the Hostelry—
but I am sorry Mistress Ann could not come—and so to bed.

Summer Styles for Young Girls

"FIVE STAR FINAL" of pink slipper satin is a perfect gown for the big dance. Five rhinestone stars hold the sides of the slit back together and there's a wide pleated insert in the back of the skirt.

COSTUMES by GLADYS PARKER

"TRANSPARENT RUSE," left, is of white point d'esprit net with long, voluminous sleeves that end in pleated cuffs.

"Pouf," right, another Gladys Parker evening model, is of crinkled organdy with a huge puff bordering the hem and neckline. Three gardenias at the front cover a white grosgrain ribbon that slants downward and ties at the back.

THIS GRAND class dress of aqua crepe has a tucked bodice and pocket. Purple buttons, cut to resemble violets, are sewed demurely down the front and on the patch pocket. One button to each tack. It's called "Who'll Buy My Violets."

JUNIOR misses' clothes have just about reached the peak of perfection this year. Lucky indeed is the bright young 17-year-old who is planning a summer wardrobe.

American designers, who thoroughly understand the needs and wants of American schoolgirls, have outdone themselves to make dresses so lovely and flattering that even old sister will be green with envy.

Of course, the general style trends of this season lend themselves well to the needs of the very young. You've probably been hearing much talk about movement in the silhouette, and right in the younger girls' department is where it is most emphasized. Fluttering jabots, windswept collars, pleated inserts that swirl and swirl, and gay little hip-length jackets that swing backward are important.

Chiffon jacket ensembles and separate slipper satin and fine silk crepes are the dresses with lingerie touches have a frivolous air that is perfection, and they're cool enough for hot summer days. Red-tinges are favourites, too, and the newer ones have plain dresses topped by sleek coats in gay prints.

If chiffons and sheers don't strike notes of harmony in your taste, look at the heavier crepes. And also at the amusing cottons and linens.

Lines are more varied than ever. Not only are floral-figured, pin-striped, checked and dotted linens in high favour, but playful even old sister will be green with envy.

Some summer dresses have intricate pleated panels and inserts, and one particularly flattering little number is made of heavy white canton crepe and is pleated from neckline to hem with the pleats stitched down from hips to knees.

Point d'esprit net, crinkled organdy, slipper satin and fine silk crepes are the leading fabrics for formal gowns.

"STAR PUPIL" is Gladys Parker's name for this street length frock of heavy white canton crepe, pleated from neck to hem. White stars hold the dress together at the neck.

FRANCE'S STRONG MAN

LEADER OF CROIX DE FEU

BY MORRIS GILBERT

An officer and a gentleman, 45 years old, spare-jawed, smooth-shaven, his body naked and marauded by every weapon of war from assegai to German Liege, looms over France to-day like a Hitler with manners, dignity, and a conscience.

He is Colonel de la Rocque, president-general of the formidable "Croix de Feu."

Colonel de la Rocque is no house-painter-turned-corporal like Hitler, rescued from oblivion by a war—and a peace. He is the son of a general, a soldier of career, a graduate of the cavalry school at St. Cyr, a veteran of French wars in Algeria and Morocco.

He is the man whom to-day untold thousands of followers revere with a quite un-French devotion and awe; whom they follow and obey with a military ardour which is mystic in its force. He is the man who "could have" captured the Chamber of Deputies—his followers declare—on the "tragic" night of Feb. 6; who "could have" captured the Ministry of the Interior on the night before; who to-day at any moment, if he wishes, could throw enough armed men, thoroughly trained, brilliantly led, into the streets of Paris to capture the government and the capital.

The reason the redoubtable colonel did not do these things—again it is his followers who speak, since Colonel de la Rocque at this writing has yet to be interviewed by Frenchman or foreigner—is because he has no political ambitions, for himself, or for the Croix de Feu. The assertion is bluntly made that the leader and his cohorts want no power for themselves. What they want,

Colonel de la Rocque... "could have."

they say, is a clean France, a France purged of the venom which the Stavisky scandal and all its effects have traced in the republic's veins.

But when anybody asks a Croix de Feu what he means by a "clean" France he replies with equal abruptness: "We are the ones who will decide that."

When a Croix de Feu is asked what he would do if a Socialist-Communist combine overthrew the government of France in some forthcoming general election, he answers: "We would throw it out."

When it is argued that a dictatorship of this kind is in fact political despite the leader's denial of political aims, the Croix de Feu member smiles and says: "That is the kind of government we will have."

When one observes that there is apparently in France a huge group of people determined to force a socialist government on the country and that opposition by the Croix de Feu would mean civil war, the speaker responds: "We would win because we are better trained in military affairs."

When the question is put: "Is the Croix de Feu armed?" the answer is such that one does not doubt it.

The Ten Commandments of the Croix de Feu are all embraced in one: absolute subordination to the will of the leader. The origins of the Croix de Feu are equally interesting. The group was originally composed of soldiers who had been decorated for service under fire. Now it has been increased by the "Brisards," the "Hashmarks"—men who though not decorated nevertheless served at the front during the campaigns of the World War.

The political programme of the Croix de Feu is hard to define. Suffice it that its creed is a vigilant honesty in office. The Croix de Feu is a "Rightist" movement, no doubt, being a national as opposed to an international scheme and hating Communism.

The one thing that stands out in the mystery of Colonel de la Rocque is that he was a good soldier. The fact that after the war he was invited to join the staff of General Foch proves it. The colonel's advance from the rim of Africa to the generalissimo's staff was brilliant. Invalided out of the African sidishow he managed to wrangle a job on the Western Front. There in 1918, commanding a battalion, he captured an entire German battalion and was made officer of the Legion of Honour. Not long afterwards, though the war had been won in between, de la Rocque was ordered by Foch to Poland. There de la Rocque remained two years, bolstering up the Polish war machine. Then the Riff war claimed him, and again he saw active service in his familiar Morocco.

It was years ago that he began to devote himself to the service of the Croix de Feu and to the task which saw results on February 6.

Many men swear that Colonel de la Rocque could have done exactly what his followers boast on Feb. 6—have invaded the Chamber of Deputies and chucked the cringing deputies into the Seine. Many men swear that, due to the organization, the military skill and dominance of the Croix de Feu, the government could have been overturned. The fact is that Colonel de la Rocque did none of these things. He decided, no doubt, to bide his time.

THE COMING PLEBISCITE

BY MILTON BRONNER

"When the Saar territory is returned to Germany, there is nothing which could oppose Germany to France."

These are Adolf Hitler's words, and they make the Saar worth thinking about. For the next year it is going to be the most important, the most fought over, the most troublesome piece of land in all Europe.

For long decades before the Napoleonic wars, it was part of French territory. After Napoleon was whipped, it was ceded to Germany. A big German military garrison was kept there. The French sympathizers moved out and the Germans moved in. It became German to the core. The development of coal mines and the consequent industries which sprang up made it the most densely populated part of Europe. Its 738 square miles of territory have a population of 800,000, or about 1,150 per square mile.

FRANCE GIVEN MINES.

When the World War ended, the French wanted this territory. The other Allies refused to give it to them. But they did the next best thing. All the coal mines in the district were given to France in reparation for the damage German armies did to the coal mining region of northern France. The Saar was severed from Germany and put under the control of a commission named by the Council of the League of Nations.

The Versailles treaty further provided that in 1935 there should be a plebiscite to determine the future of the territory. Every adult person living in the land since 1920 was to have a vote. The people were to say whether they wanted to continue under League of Nations rule, be annexed to France or go back to Germany.

It has generally been understood that the plebiscite would be mandatory and final. But what the treaty actually says is this:

"The League of Nations shall decide on the sovereignty under which the territory is to be placed, taking into account the wishes of the inhabitants as expressed by the voting."

LEAGUE MAY DIVIDE SAAR.

It will thus be seen that the result of the plebiscite is not mandatory, but optional. This is strengthened by the following paragraphs which tell what the League is to do if it decides that "the whole or part" of the territory is to remain under the League, go to France or go to Germany. Under this, it is conceivable that the League might divide the territory between France and Germany.

A few months before the Nazis came into power there was little doubt how the plebiscite would have gone. Everybody agrees that it would have registered 90 per cent. pro-German sentiment. The Nazi regime in Germany has made the issue doubtful, with the odds still favouring Germany. But the Jews, remembering what happened to their co-religionists in Germany; the Catholics, resentful of the attitude of the Third Reich towards their fellows; the trades unionists, Socialists and Communists, fearful of Nazi treatment, all now constitute an element of doubt. It has been estimated by some that the voters at present are divided 35 per cent. for Germany, 30 per cent. against, and 35 per cent. still on the fence.

TERRITORY HAS PROSPERED.

But aside from the political and religious elements, there is another factor—the economic. The Saar has prospered under the present regime. It enjoys free trade with France and liberal treatment in

The position of the troublesome Saar Basin in relation to the two nations which covet it—France and Germany—is indicated on the map above. Now enjoying free trade with France, the Saarlanders can and do exchange their coal for the iron ore and food of French Lorraine. A return to German rule would mean that the Saar coal industry would be put in competition with the German Ruhr, which produces a superior grade of coal.

Germany. It gets its iron ore and food from Lorraine, which is now part of France. Lorraine, on the other hand, gets its coal for its steel mills from the Saar. To go back to Germany would upset all this and would put the Saar in competition with the Ruhr, which has much better coal and is already closely linked up with the German steel and iron industry.

Ever since the Nazis came into power, they have waged an intensive campaign in the Saar. It has been charged that one of Hitler's lieutenants carried on an invisible and unofficial government alongside the official one led by the League Commission; that most of the 1,000 gendarmes and 250 municipal policemen are Nazis; that so are many of the elected officials.

The Nazis became so bold that the League Commission issued a whole set of decrees to curb them.

TERRORISM IMPEDES VOTING.

A specific committee of the League of Nations is wrestling with the question of when and how the plebiscite shall be held. The difficulty can be summed up in one word—terrorism. Nazi leaders have proclaimed that they have a list of all "traitors." In other words, those who won't vote for Nazi Germany. Their broadcasting machines in Germany send out further threats. Some radical Nazis have openly said that their leaders have promised them 24 hours in which to even up scores whereas they had demanded 48. Under such conditions, it may be very difficult to get an unbiased ballot.

The Nazi leaders of Germany say France ought to turn the territory over to Germany without insisting upon a ballot. They say they want to do this to spare the feelings of the French, because the pro-German vote will be so enormous as to constitute a slap for the French. On the other hand, Frenchmen say Hitler is anxious to avoid a plebiscite, because he fears he will either lose it or just barely scrape through—which would be a slap for him. Towards the end of May the League of Nations will have to decide what to do.

VIGNETTES OF LIFE

By J. NORMAN LYND

EVERY ONCE IN A WHILE SOME KID UPSETS THE FAMILY BY STUFFING BEANS IN HIS EARS OR NOSE... THEN IT'S UP TO THE DOCTOR TO FIND THEM.

THE PATIENT THAT THINKS SHE CAN ARRANGE WITH THE DOCTOR TO PRESCRIBE A LONG AND LUXURIOUS SEA-TRIP FOR HER.

THE ANSWER TO THE DOCTOR'S PRAYER... THE WELL-TO-DO, HEALTHY-ENOUGH PERSON WHO IMAGINES SHE HAS EVERY KNOWN AILMENT.

THE PATIENT WHO ISN'T QUITE SURE WHAT AILS HIM BUT HIS FOOD "DOESN'T SET RIGHT ON HIS STUMMICK-LIKE."

"I KNOW WHAT HE'S GOING TO TELL ME... JUST WHAT HE TOLD ME BEFORE... CUT OUT RED MEATS, PUDDINGS, COFFEE, CIGARS, LIQUOR, AND ALL ENJOYMENT."

IT IS REFRESHING TO FIND A DOCTOR THAT KEEPS ABREAST OF THE TIMES AND HAS THIS YEAR'S MAGAZINES.

THE PERSON WHO HASN'T YET HIS DOCTOR 14 YEARS - BUT STILL EXPECTS TO HAVE HIS ACNES AND PAINS TAKEN CARE OF.

THE ONE WHO DOESN'T BELIEVE IN DOCTORS... UNTIL SOMETHING HITS HIM.

LOCAL DEFENCE CONTRIBUTION

RELIEF GRANTED BY WAR OFFICE

NEW LIST OF EXEMPTIONS

Considerable relief in respect of the Defence Contribution payable by the Colony should result from an amending ordinance dealing with the subject, the draft of which appears in the current Gazette.

Under the old ordinance, the only revenues excused from calculation for the purposes of the Defence Contribution were proceeds of land sales and premiums on leases or statutory land grants. To the list there will now be added:

MORE EXEMPTIONS.

Revenue received from condemned stores.

Contributions received from the Chinese Government for the maintenance of Gap Rock Lighthouse.

Contributions received for anti-piracy escorts.

Over-payments recovered in respect of previous years.

Sums transferred to revenue under Colonial Regulation 201 in respect of the appreciation of investments representing merely book profits.

Profits arising from the appreciation of investments when realised.

Monies receivable from officers and specially exempted by any Ordinance for Widows and Orphans Pensions from contribution under this Ordinance.

Monies, dividends, interest or the produce of investments specially exempted by any Loan Ordinance from contribution under this Ordinance.

Monies received as punitive fines specially exempted under the provisions of any Ordinance for the time being in force relating thereto from contribution under this Ordinance.

Revenue from the profits arising from the Crown Agents' routine realisations.

NET RECEIPTS ONLY.

Amendments are also being made in regard to undertakings in respect of which only the net receipts are taken into account for the purposes of the Military Contribution. Hitherto, only railways and telephones came under this head.

There are now added the Oplum Monopoly, the Government wireless services, the Government motor meat van services, and the Water Installation Account.

A REGISTRATION OFFENCE

NICKNAME IN HOTEL REGISTER

Alec Victor Strijevsky, a motor salesman, appeared before Mr. Hamilton, at the Central Magistrate's Court this morning, on a charge of having given false information as to his name when registering.

Defendant had signed his name as Alec Victor Striker at the Republic Bay Hotel.

Sub-Inspector Nolloth said the object of bringing the case was that there was considerable difficulty in tracing people when they signed under a wrong name.

Defendant admitted the charge, saying that "Striker" was a more convenient name, and he had been using it for a long time. It was a sort of nickname.

Sub-Inspector Nolloth said he was not pressing the case.

Mr. Hamilton imposed a fine of $25.

PRISONERS' ESCAPE

ONE RECAPTURED AFTER DASH FROM G.C.H.

Sent by the Police to the Government Civil Hospital for treatment for minor abrasions, two prisoners made a dash for liberty from the prison ward shortly before eight o'clock last night.

One man was intercepted by guards before he could make his way out of the hospital grounds, but the other got away.

The escaped prisoner was Lau Sing, 35 years of age, and was being held on a charge of returning from banishment. He was placed in the "B" block, together with other prisoners who were being treated in the hospital. Young Wai, who was recaptured, was being held on a charge of loitering in Claremont Hotel. It is understood that he was suffering from injuries to his face when he was handed over to the Police after being found in Claremont Hotel.

Guards are placed on duty outside the prison ward, but sometime between 7.30 and 8 p.m. last night the two men saw their opportunity and slipped out. Hospital attendants saw Young Wai and raised the alarm, and the man was caught before he could leave the grounds.

On making investigations in the prison ward, it was then found that Lau Sing was also missing. A thorough search of the hospital precincts revealed no sign of the man.

Police headquarters were immediately notified, and a Police net was thrown around the immediate vicinity of the hospital. Patrols were sent out to the various vessels due to leave the Colony for Hong-moon and Canton to search for the escaped prisoner.

CABINET UPSET

SEIYUKAI PARTY SLIGHTED

Tokyo, July 6. The Seiyukai Party has refused to allow their members, Messrs. Takejiro Tokanami and Katsuke Mochizuki, to become ministers in the Okada Cabinet.

Mr. T. Tokanami was named for the post of Minister of Communications, and Mr. K. Mochizuki Minister of Agriculture.

The Seiyukai Party is refusing to sanction the appointments on the grounds that they are unimportant portfolios, and the Party has been slighted by offering them to the members.—United Press.

Decision Not Given.

A Reuter message states that the formation of the Cabinet has been brought to a standstill by the action of the Seiyukai Party. The party is at present holding a conference to decide whether it will accept Admiral Okada's offer of the two minor posts or refuse its support to the Government. A decision is expected to-morrow morning.

A SHORT PEACE

TROUBLE FLARES UP IN IRELAND

London, July 6. The recent peaceful local government elections are now having a stormy aftermath. Much violence is being displayed towards the Opposition, particularly the Blue Shirts.

A meeting being addressed by General O'Duffy at Ballina, County Mayo, was held up under a continuous barrage of stones, while the hall in which the Blue Shirts intended holding a dance was invaded by demonstrators, who destroyed all the musical instruments and tarred the floor.

Police and military reinforcements had to be rushed from Cork City to quell a violent attack upon Blue Shirts holding a dance at Donoughmore.

The Catholic Clergy at Cashel, Tipperary, where political feeling has been running high for several months, have made an earnest appeal to both sides to call a truce and abandon all meetings and parades in the interests of peace.—Reuter.

DIOCESAN SCHOOL BOXING

BOYS' EXCELLENT DISPLAYS

MATTHEWS BEST WINNER

Youngsters, bravely pitting their skill and courage in the art of fisticuffs was the happy sight at the Diocesan Boys' School yesterday afternoon, when the finals of the annual boxing tournament were held before a large and interested crowd of parents and friends.

The bouts were featured by clean boxing and good sportsmanship and reflected the highest credit on all of the competitors.

Matthews received the cup presented for the winner of the best bout, and Cray, E. Fisher and Sin Cho-yuen were presented with books for general improvement shown in their boxing.

Mr. E. F. Selk, Sports Secretary of the Y.M.C.A., was the referee, Messrs. Sargent and Luard acted as judges and Mr. Monks was timekeeper.

The complete results were: Matthews beat Cray, F. Smith beat Petchenik, E. Rapley beat W. Rapley, Kazanoff beat Hulke, Vranstall beat Steinberg.

C.B.S. SWIMMING SPORTS

Girls And Boys Show Good Form

The Central British School held their annual swimming sports in the European Y.M.C.A. bath yesterday afternoon, when keen swimming amid great enthusiasm was a feature.

The spectators, comprising parents, pupils and friends, saw some fine inter-house rivalry, and some most promising talent was observed among the senior boys. The senior boys and girls diving displays were also excellent.

No individual awards were made during the afternoon, the competitors swimming for the honour of their respective Houses.

The result saw Red House finish first with 107 points, Blue second with 94 points and Chocolate third with 90 points.

Miss H. Knill was in charge of the arrangements.

A composite picture of Fred Perry and the Wimbledon Centre Court, giving an impression of how the Englishman must have appeared to Crawford during yesterday's remarkable championship final, which Perry won in three straight sets.

TITLE BACK ENGLISHMAN AFTER 25 YEARS AT VERY BEST

In 1909, the late Arthur Wentworth Gore, an Englishman, won the men's singles championship at Wimbledon. To-day, 25 years later, Frederick John Perry, also an Englishman, has emulated his feat. Wimbledon's crown has once again returned to the land of its birth, to be worn, for at least one year, by unquestionably the greatest tennis player in the world to-day.

"Perry's Year," as was so confidently forecast by tennis critics has become an established fact. Perry began this amazing twelve months' of uninterrupted success when he beat Andre Merlin and Henri Cochet in the challenge round of the Davis Cup at the Stade Roland Garros in 1933. In the space of twelve months he has leapt from being a good player with potentialities, to the finest exponent of the game in the world.

The battle for the world's premier tennis title—the men's singles championship of Wimbledon—was all over in 65 minutes to-day, when Fred J. Perry of Britain defeated Jack H. Crawford of Australia, and holder of the title, in three straight sets by the scores of 6-3, 6-0, 7-5.

Perry played magnificently, could do nothing wrong, and literally swept Crawford off his feet. After trailing 1-3 in the first set, the Englishman stupified everybody by taking twelve games in a row to win the first and second sets, and to lead by one-love in the third. It was the most devastating display of tennis seen on the centre court at Wimbledon, and for sheer skill, speed and accuracy equalled Tilden at his best.

His path of achievement has been pursued quietly, but very deliberately; as though the whole thing were planned and had been accomplished according to schedule. He has, in the words of those illustrious commentators, Messrs. Yeatman and Salter, made England "Top Nation" again in the world of tennis.

FANTASTIC FINAL.

His final with Jack Crawford of Australia, yesterday—the fifth within a year—will go down to posterity as one of the most fantastic in the annals of Wimbledon. The drama of its completeness and swiftness equals the drama of any of the other great finals played on the centre court, even though it was of a different type. Not even the almost impossible recovery of Henri Cochet against "Bill" Tilden in 1927 was more stunning than the incredible debacle of yesterday.

The first set took 25 minutes; the second ten; Perry won twelve games in a row. Amazing figures! Never before has Crawford been so completely outclassed. His three straight sets defeat at Bournemouth pales into insignificance against the rout he suffered yesterday. Overwhelmed by a genius whose magic touch made the racket and ball, his feet and his body do anything and everything at will, Crawford went down bewildered. After winning the first three games in characteristic style, which sent the sages into wise head-nodding, Crawford found himself opposed to human dynamite, who gave the impression that if there were such things as love defects, he had never heard of them or identified himself with them.

One-two-three-four-five-six games! The huge crowd were exhilarated. It was scarcely believable that their idol, Perry, had, in the face of a three-love deficit, won the first set without further loss. But the Englishman had only just started. After this he metaphorically took off his sweater, and got down to serious business. One-two-three-four-five-six! The Crawford played steadily at the start and went into a lead of 3-1. Then, in the most amazing fashion, Perry won twelve games straight off to win the first and second sets and to take the lead in the third.

Perry started his phenomenal run of success in the fourth game of the first set, when he was trailing Crawford, love-40 on the Australian's service.

Perry flung over three priceless backhand winners which Crawford did not even get a glimpse of. After this the Englishman scored points at will, and the set finished after 25 minutes.

COMPLETE MASTER.

The challenger was complete master of the situation in the second set. He seemed to be possessed with a sixth sense and having knowledge of every move made by Crawford, Perry made light of his opponent's keenest thrusts, forcing him into error after error. The Englishman also continually need Crawford, and took the set in ten minutes—a superb piece of work.

In the third set Crawford regained some of his control, and games alternated with service, and then Crawford showed Perry with three wonderful lobs to take a lead of 5-4. Amidst tense excitement Perry drew level and went out to lead 6-5. Crawford, making a stupendous effort on service led 40-love, and then Perry, with superb driving need the Australian and drew up to deuce. Perry next obtained match point, and at this stage an amazing and somewhat unfortunate incident occurred.

Crawford, serving a magnificent ball was footfaulted for the first time during the match, and Perry won his match point and became the first English champion since 1909.—Reuter.

games came in rapid succession, points speeding from Perry's racket like bullets from a machine gun. In plain language he was unstoppable. DAZED WITH SHOCK.

SUSSEX VIRTUAL CHAMPIONS

GRIP ON CRICKET CHAMPIONSHIP

FORTUNES OF VARSITIES

London, July 6. Sussex are now firmly entrenched at the top of the county cricket championship table, and it will mean a lot of unexpected reverses for them to be deposed. Victory against Worcester to-day, and the defeats of Yorkshire and Kent have left Sussex high and dry. They are virtual champions. Gloucester followed up their innings defeat of Kent in the first part of the week, with another smashing victory at the expense of Yorkshire, greatly depleted through Test calls. Yorkshire could not get going at the wickets, and Parker did some useful bowling in the second innings, after scoring 368 in their first innings, Gloucester had only to hit up 82 to win, and these they obtained for the loss of one wicket. Sussex continued their path of success. A double century by Tommy

A. P. ("Titch") Freeman of Kent, the first bowler to take 100 wickets in first class cricket in England this season.

SHANGHAI INTERPORT TENNIS TRIALS

W.A.H. DUFF SHOWS UP WELL

Shanghai, July 2. A remarkable improvement in style over the previous day's exhibitions was shown by the local net stars when the Interport Tennis Trials were continued yesterday on the S.L.T.A. courts.

Although Khoo Hoo-hye and Guy Cheng were defeated in two straight sets by W. H. Duff and M. Benavitch 6-1, 6-1, the scores were by no means indicative of the play which was brilliant on both sides.

Owing to the terrific heat and the length to which the sets were going, the singles match between Carson and Matsumada was abandoned when the scores stood at 6-4, 8-6, and 6-6, the first set having been won by Carson, and the second by his opponent.

Benavitch and Duff worked together with beautiful precision and sense of partnership and were rarely out of position, while their volleying drew round after round of applause from the fair number of spectators. Their exhibition yesterday left little doubt as to what will be the decision of the selection committee when it comes to consider the doubles.

CARSON A CERTAINTY.

Khoo was let down by Cheng on several occasions, the latter seeming to be completely off form at times and showing signs of nervousness at the receiving end. Several games in both sets went to deuce scores before the two foreign players were able to take the game, and for this full credit must be given for Khoo's steady work from all points of the court.

Carson appeared to be showing the strain when he entered the singles, match with Matsumada, but despite this he managed to take the first set. After leading 3-2, he lost three games to his opponent, but steadying himself with a wonderful effort, he took the games needed to bring the scores to 6-2. Carson gave only one more game away before he won the set 6-4.

In the following two sets Carson was absolutely fatigued and appeared barely able to use his racket. It was only due to his great staying powers that he was able to take his opponent to 8-6, while his performance in bringing the scores level at 6-6 in the third set was little short of superhuman. His display must be considered one of the finest yet given in Shanghai, and makes him at least one certainty for the team.

ARMY BILLIARDS

In an inter-unit Billiards League game played at the Soldiers Club, the 1st Bn. the South Wales Borderers, scored a convincing win over the Royal Artillery. As a result of this the Borderers have again captured the premier honours in this competition.

In compiling a faultless 64 break, C.S.M. Lewis beat the previous highest made by Sgt. Green of the Lincolnshire Regiment, who had compiled a 62 in the same competition.

WORLD'S MOST GRUELLING BICYCLE RACE

SIXTY COMPETING IN TOUR DE FRANCE

FRANCE EXPECTED TO WIN AGAIN THIS YEAR

THRILLING EVENT STARTED THIS WEEK

Sixty athletes pushed off on Tuesday on the world's longest and most gruelling race, the bicycle Tour de France which will take the cyclists of six nations around the coastline and over the frontier mountains of France in 23 steps between July 3 and 29.

In this race of 2,614 miles, with single steps as long as 175 miles in a single day, these cyclists have only their legs and several dozen tyres to see them through. This being the most popular event on the French sporting calendar it is estimated that 4,000,000 "fans" will watch the race in its different stages.

With but four days of rest, the sixty athletes will cycle all day and sprint to mountain tops or across a finish-line in an effort to win their share of the 800,000 francs of prizes which publicity-seeking merchants offer. The winner of each daily step draws 10,000 francs, but those who trail the field will do well to total $100 by the end of the grind.

The field is limited to sixty starters, there being eight men on each of the five national teams—France, Italy, Germany, Belgium and Spain—Switzerland and 20 independents. In each country, the teams are picked from the winners of lesser championships. The Paris sporting newspaper, L'Auto, which founded and organizes the race, provides each of the racers with a bicycle and as many tyres as needed. The newspaper also pays the hotel bills and allows the independents 40 francs a day pin-money. Some of the stars of the national teams expect to make as much as 150,000 francs out of the race.

HAZARDOUS COURSE. The course leads through all sorts of temperatures. Along the ocean, especially in Brittany and Vendee, the strong winds blow so hard that the cyclists take turns riding on the windy side as wind-breakers. They ride with arms and legs bare, jockey-caps pulled low over their eyes. In pockets on their sweaters fronts they carry eggs and bananas to munch during the long ride between filling stations.

At certain specified places, cooks have prepared tasty lunches—oatmeal and packed-them-in-cans bags which are handed out and swung by straps over the shoulders. The cyclists then ride along, eating and drinking as they speed at 25 miles an hour.

France is the favourite to win again this year, repeating her victories of the past four years. The race started in 1903 as a tour of the Auvergne highlands, a rude hills to climb. By 1905 it had been prolonged to 900 miles and by 1907 when the Alps were included millions started to watch the race.

Since the war, Belgium won the races in 1919, 1920, 1921 and 1922; Henri Pelissier, of France, took it in 1923; Bettelheim, Italian "iron man" won in 1924 and 1925; Lucien Buysse, Belgium, in 1926; Nicolas Frantz, Luxembourg, in 1927 and 1928; Devoelo, Belgium, in 1929; the popular Andre Ledueq in 1930 and 1932, Antonin Magno in 1931 and George Speicher in 1933.

Ledueq is a Parisian of the gutters, with a caustic tongue and a broad sense of humour. One of the greatest cyclists of all time, he is not a member of this year's team principally because the ears of race officials are still red from tongue lashings he gave them last year when he was dissatisfied with changed regulations.

PRIME FAVOURITES.

Speicher, last year's winner, and Charles Pelissier, "orchid of the wooden bowls", are prime favourites. Pelissier, with the profile of a cinema star, is known to more young boys of France than is the Premier of France. Pelissier, Lapebie and Speicher are the best sprinters, capable of finishing a grinding 100 miles with a sprint at the speed of 40 miles an hour. Vicente Trueta, tiny Spaniard who weighs but 110 pounds, is "king of the mountains," the best climber of them all.

Trueta never leaves his saddle in the heart-breaking climbs and last year climbed the Galibier pass in the Alps at an average of 8 miles an hour, a steady climb upwards for a distance of 16 miles. The next best climbers are Rinaldo Vicetto, youngest of the French selection, the riders remain well packed, but there was one historical instance before the war when Emilio Georget climbed the mountains so fast that he was soon out of sight. He kept going until he was all alone, not even a spectator.

THE MAN WHO RETURNED.

Surprised, he believed himself on the wrong road and started back down the mountain full speed. Near the bottom he ran into the pack on the same road, so he had to turn around and climb the mountain again at the top of which he once had a lead of 40 minutes over the pack. There was another time when the pace was so fast that the cyclists had no time to look at the scenery and the first act of the winner, Rene Pottier, was to invest his prize money in a railroad ticket for a tour over the same country across which he had pedalled.

BANNED MAGAZINE.

CHINESE REPLY TO BRITISH PROTEST

London, July 6. Reuter learns that the Chinese Government, in replying to the British Legation regarding the placing of a postal ban on the Shanghai British journal, Oriental Affairs, asserts that the magazine has been consistently hostile and indirectly damaging to the Chinese Government.

The Chinese Government also alleges that the magazine takes every opportunity to espouse recognition of Manchukuo; and it asserts that the Chinese population of Manchukuo would welcome recognition.

The reply further states that the Chinese Government welcomes friendly constructive criticism; but malicious remarks, the preaching of disloyalty to the Government and racial animosity must be regarded differently.

The ban must be regarded as a mild correction. It can be lifted if the party concerned offers amends.

The Chinese Government emphasizes that the China Critic has been banned on various occasions in the Straits Settlements, and is still banned in Rangoon without the slightest explanation being offered.—Retier.

Association Issues Annual Report

According to the annual report of the Hongkong Football Association, whose meeting has been fixed for next Thursday, Clubs playing in Division I of the Hongkong Amateur Football League should send to the Hon. Secretary, before the date of the annual general meeting, a nomination for the council.

The report further states: Each affiliated Club shall be entitled to nominate two members as representatives at the Annual General Meeting.

It will be noted that there is a loss on the year's working of $2,999.21. The Council held sixteen meetings during the year to transact the business of the Association.

The Appeals Board met on two occasions to deal with appeals from the Council's decisions. Several cases were dealt with by the Emergency Committee during the year. In most cases, the charges were "striking an opponent on the field of play," while three matches were abandoned through fighting between the players. The Committee dealt severely with the players reported by the referees in charge of the matches.

The Hon. Mr. R. H. Kotewall, C.M.G., L.D., Vice-President, resigned owing to pressure of business, Mr. H. K. Lo being elected to fill the vacancy.

had to play according to the dictates of his opponent, and as they allowed him the positive minimum for enterprise, attack or even successful defence, the games were reeled off against him in relentless succession. Crawford emerged slowly, blunderingly, out of this anaesthetic in the third set. He made a brilliant attempt to re-establish himself, once again he pitted skill against skill. But it was against a joyous opponent, bubbling over with confidence: the confidence to win. The Australian made a stupendous effort to stem the tide, to save the third set and so seek solace in a rest and the chance to recover his equilibrium. But Perry, following up like lion after tasting blood, would not be stopped from his prey, and in a spectacular finish, crowned his unique career.

DROWNED IN BATH.

INQUIRY INTO DEATH OF MR. R. J. DE HEZ MOORE

An inquiry was held yesterday afternoon at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court into the death of Mr. Brinsley John de Hez Moore, who was found dead in his bath in the Airline Hotel at 8.15 a.m. on June 21. Mr. J. B. Lee, who was Coroner at the inquest, returned a verdict of death through drowning as a result of having an epileptic fit whilst having a bath. No suspicious circumstances were attached to the death.

Dr. Nelson-Jones gave evidence that, at 8.15 a.m. on June 21, he received a telephone call and when he arrived saw Mr. Moore in one of the bedrooms, apparently dead. Witnesses quickly gave him two camphor and strychnine injections but, whilst giving them, realised that Mr. Moore was dead. There were no marks of violence, although the face and neck were suffused. His appearance was consistent with death from drowning, but the actual cause of death could not be ascertained except by post-mortem examination.

Evidence was then given by Dr. John C. Macgowan, who said that he had known Mr. Moore since 1924. Mr. Moore had consulted him on account of his epilepsy. Dr. Macgowan had never actually seen deceased in a fit, but had often been called in to attend to him. According to doctor's orders, Mr. Moore had taken luminal tablets to prevent epileptic fits, and if, on any occasion, he forgot them, he invariably took a fit afterwards. In Dr. Macgowan's opinion, Mr. Moore might have taken too many tablets, which would have caused him to fall asleep. Luminal was a poisonous drug. Mr. Moore was directed to take two tablets twice daily.

Post-mortem.
Dr. J. B. Mackie said that on June 21 he had conducted a post-mortem examination on the body of Mr. Moore. Externally, the face was suffused and there were areas of suffusion on the neck and shoulders. There was froth round his mouth. Internally, there was water in both lungs and in the stomach. The cause of death was drowning. Dr. Mackie said that there are never any indications in a post-mortem of epilepsy.

Mrs. Olga Allan Devecchia, who had known Mr. Moore for the past six months, said that she had known he was subject to fits and that he was extremely sensitive about them.

At 7.30 a.m. on June 21, she saw Mr. Moore going to the bathroom and at 8.10 a.m. growing alarmed at his still being in the bathroom, she called on the boy to assist her in opening the door. When they realised that it was bolted from the inside, they went through a bedroom next door to the bathroom and entered by the window. She saw Mr. Moore lying on his left side in his bath, his head half out of the water. She pulled him out and called for Mr. Oglivie, the manager of the hotel.

Mrs. Devecchia told the Coroner

LOCAL ANIMAL LOVERS HOLD MEETING

A meeting of the Hongkong Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was held at Messrs. Lane Crawford's on Wednesday. Mr. J. Russell presided and there were also present Miss C. Angus, Mrs. Hayden, Mrs. Jeffries, Mrs. Loeby, Miss J. Phelps, Mrs. de Seiddeck, Mr. D. Davies, Mr. Ervine-Andrews, Mr. J. B. Macdonald, Mr. Pestonji, Mr. L. Ross, Mr. de Seiddeck, Mr. Vellki, Mr. H. M. Cockle (Secretary).

The present outbreak of rabies in Kowloon and the New Territories was fully discussed, and it was agreed that an appeal be made to every dog owner in the Colony to co-operate to the fullest extent with the Authorities in their strenuous endeavours to prevent further spread of this disease. Serum inoculation is now available at the Dogs' Home for owners who desire to secure this protection for their dogs, and it is hoped that the public will receive benefit from this facility.

The Society has for many years advocated the use of the Humane Killer in the Slaughter Houses of the Colony, and wish to acknowledge with appreciation the action of the Authorities in passing the recent legislation, which compels the use of mechanical means in the slaughter of sheep and goats.

The building of the New Dogs' Home is rapidly progressing and the Society will shortly have at its command a home worthy of the cause for which it is working.

It is thought that many would avail themselves of the Society which is accomplishing such valuable work in the Colony and a donation, however small, will be thankfully acknowledged. It may be sent with the confidence that it will relieve some unknown animal's suffering.

that she had often warned Mr. Moore of the danger of taking too many luminal tablets. She had seen him take four a day.

The coolie who had assisted last witness in gaining entrance to the bathroom gave corroborative evidence.

Mr. Alexander Oglivie, manager of the Airline Hotel, said that Mr. Moore had engaged a room in the hotel last February. On the morning of June 21, witness was called to top-floor bathroom, where he saw Mr. Moore. He then rushed downstairs and telephoned for Dr. Nelson-Jones.

The manager of the Kowloon Hotel, Mr. J. H. White, recalled that Mr. Moore had been resident in his hotel from 1929 until early this year. Whilst there, he had taken three fits. He was in the habit of buying medicine in large quantities from Watsons and the Pharmacy.

After further corroborative evidence was given by the house-boy in Airline Hotel, Mr. Lee returned the verdict given above.

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

To transfer characters from a book to the screen with the fidelity of real life so they can be recognized and loved by millions who know their story is the stirring production accomplishment in "Laughing Boy," Indian drama based on the famous Pulitzer Prize story by Oliver La Farge. The film drama, a starring Ramon Novarro with Lupe Velez as leading lady, opens to-morrow at the Queen's Theatre. The picture, filmed by the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, presents one of the most powerful dramas of Indian life and love ever written. It deals in a startling manner with the Navajo Indian as a personality capable of strong feeling and great emotional climaxes. As the young Indian, untamed and unused to love known by white men in civilized towns on the reservation, Ramon Novarro reaches new heights of penetrating appeal and restraint of deep feeling. His naive handling of early sequences provides a basis for one of the strongest dramatic climaxes ever filmed of a native people. Lupe Velez sweeps through the most powerful role of her entire screen career as a young Indian woman who has tasted civilization and still wants the wild, primitive love of her own people. She is vivid, sparkling, and cuts into the climax after another with breathless strength of feeling. One of the largest native casts ever assembled is seen in the picture with many scenes filmed on the actual reservation locale near Cameron, Arizona. Panoramas of vast buttes and desert canyons lend an authenticity to the story for startling realism. The production is minor roles in the production are played by Ruth Channing as a young tourist, Ferdinand Munier providing comedy touches as a "tenderfoot" and William Davidson as the "heavy." Col. W.S. Van Dyke, who has traveled to more remote corners of the earth than any other director again scores with his powerful handling of a native story to add to his laurels won with "Trader Horn" and recently the amazing fight story, "Prizefighter and the Lady."

"The Mysterious Rider"

Zane Grey's "The Mysterious Rider," has its final showings to-day at the Alhambra Theatre. Kent Taylor, Lona Andre, Irving Pichel, Gail Patrick and Warren Hymer play the leading roles in the film which centres around a young rancher who risks his own life to quell the attack of a crooked lawyer and an unscrupulous financier to seize a broad area of valuable land and evict the ranchers who live upon it. Pichel, as the lawyer, discovers that the land, originally granted by the Spanish king to a noble family, has never legally been transferred to the present occupants. The latter raise a fund to buy up the old claim, but the lawyer, who gets a better offer from the financier, decides to keep both sums given him and contrives to throw the blame for the disappearance of the ranchers' money, which he actually has in his possession, on Taylor. Taylor is thrown in jail, and the law is ordered upon to evict the ranchers. But Taylor escapes and in a thrilling dash across the country, saves his neighbours and clears himself. The picture comes to a dramatic climax when he faces the lawyer for a showdown. The romance between Taylor and Miss Andre runs throughout the picture.

"The Prizefighter and the Lady" A million dollars worth of off-stage noises are heard in the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer feature, "The Prizefighter and the Lady" showing at the Oriental Theatre on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. When the big fight sequence between Max Baer, heavyweight champion and Primo Carnara, was being filmed practically every star in the studio left his or her hat to join the thousand-odd extras in the especially constructed stadium and to join in the general cheering. Just a few of those present of stellar magnitude were Lionel Barrymore, Wallace Beery, Jackie Cooper, Joan

"Come On Marines"

"Come On Marines" the exciting
and humorous account of the adventures of members of the Marine Corps, home and abroad, which has its final showings to-day at the Queen's Theatre, was taken from Philip Wylie's thrilling action-romance
"The Pink Chimney," which ran as a short story in Liberty magazine a few months ago. The story has for its background the Philippine jungle.
Richard Arlen, Ida Lupino, and Roscoe Karns have the featured parts
in the picture, which was directed by Howard Hawks. The story is Grace Bradley, Monte Blue and Toby
Wing are also important cast.
Richard Arlen, as the soft-hearted
but ambitious leatherneck, loses his opportunity to enter the officers'
academy, as the result of a "girl-scrape." As a further humiliation,
he is ordered to the tropics to do service. After he has reinstated himself in the good graces of his officers,
it falls to his lot to lead a detachment of Marines into the jungle in an effort to rescue a stranded group of "school-children." To his surprise the "school-children" turn out to be full-grown and lovely debutantes, who have just left a finishing school. A surprise attack by bandits complicates matters still further. Finally Arlen resorts to a startling ruse to trap
the bandits.

"Son of a Sailor"

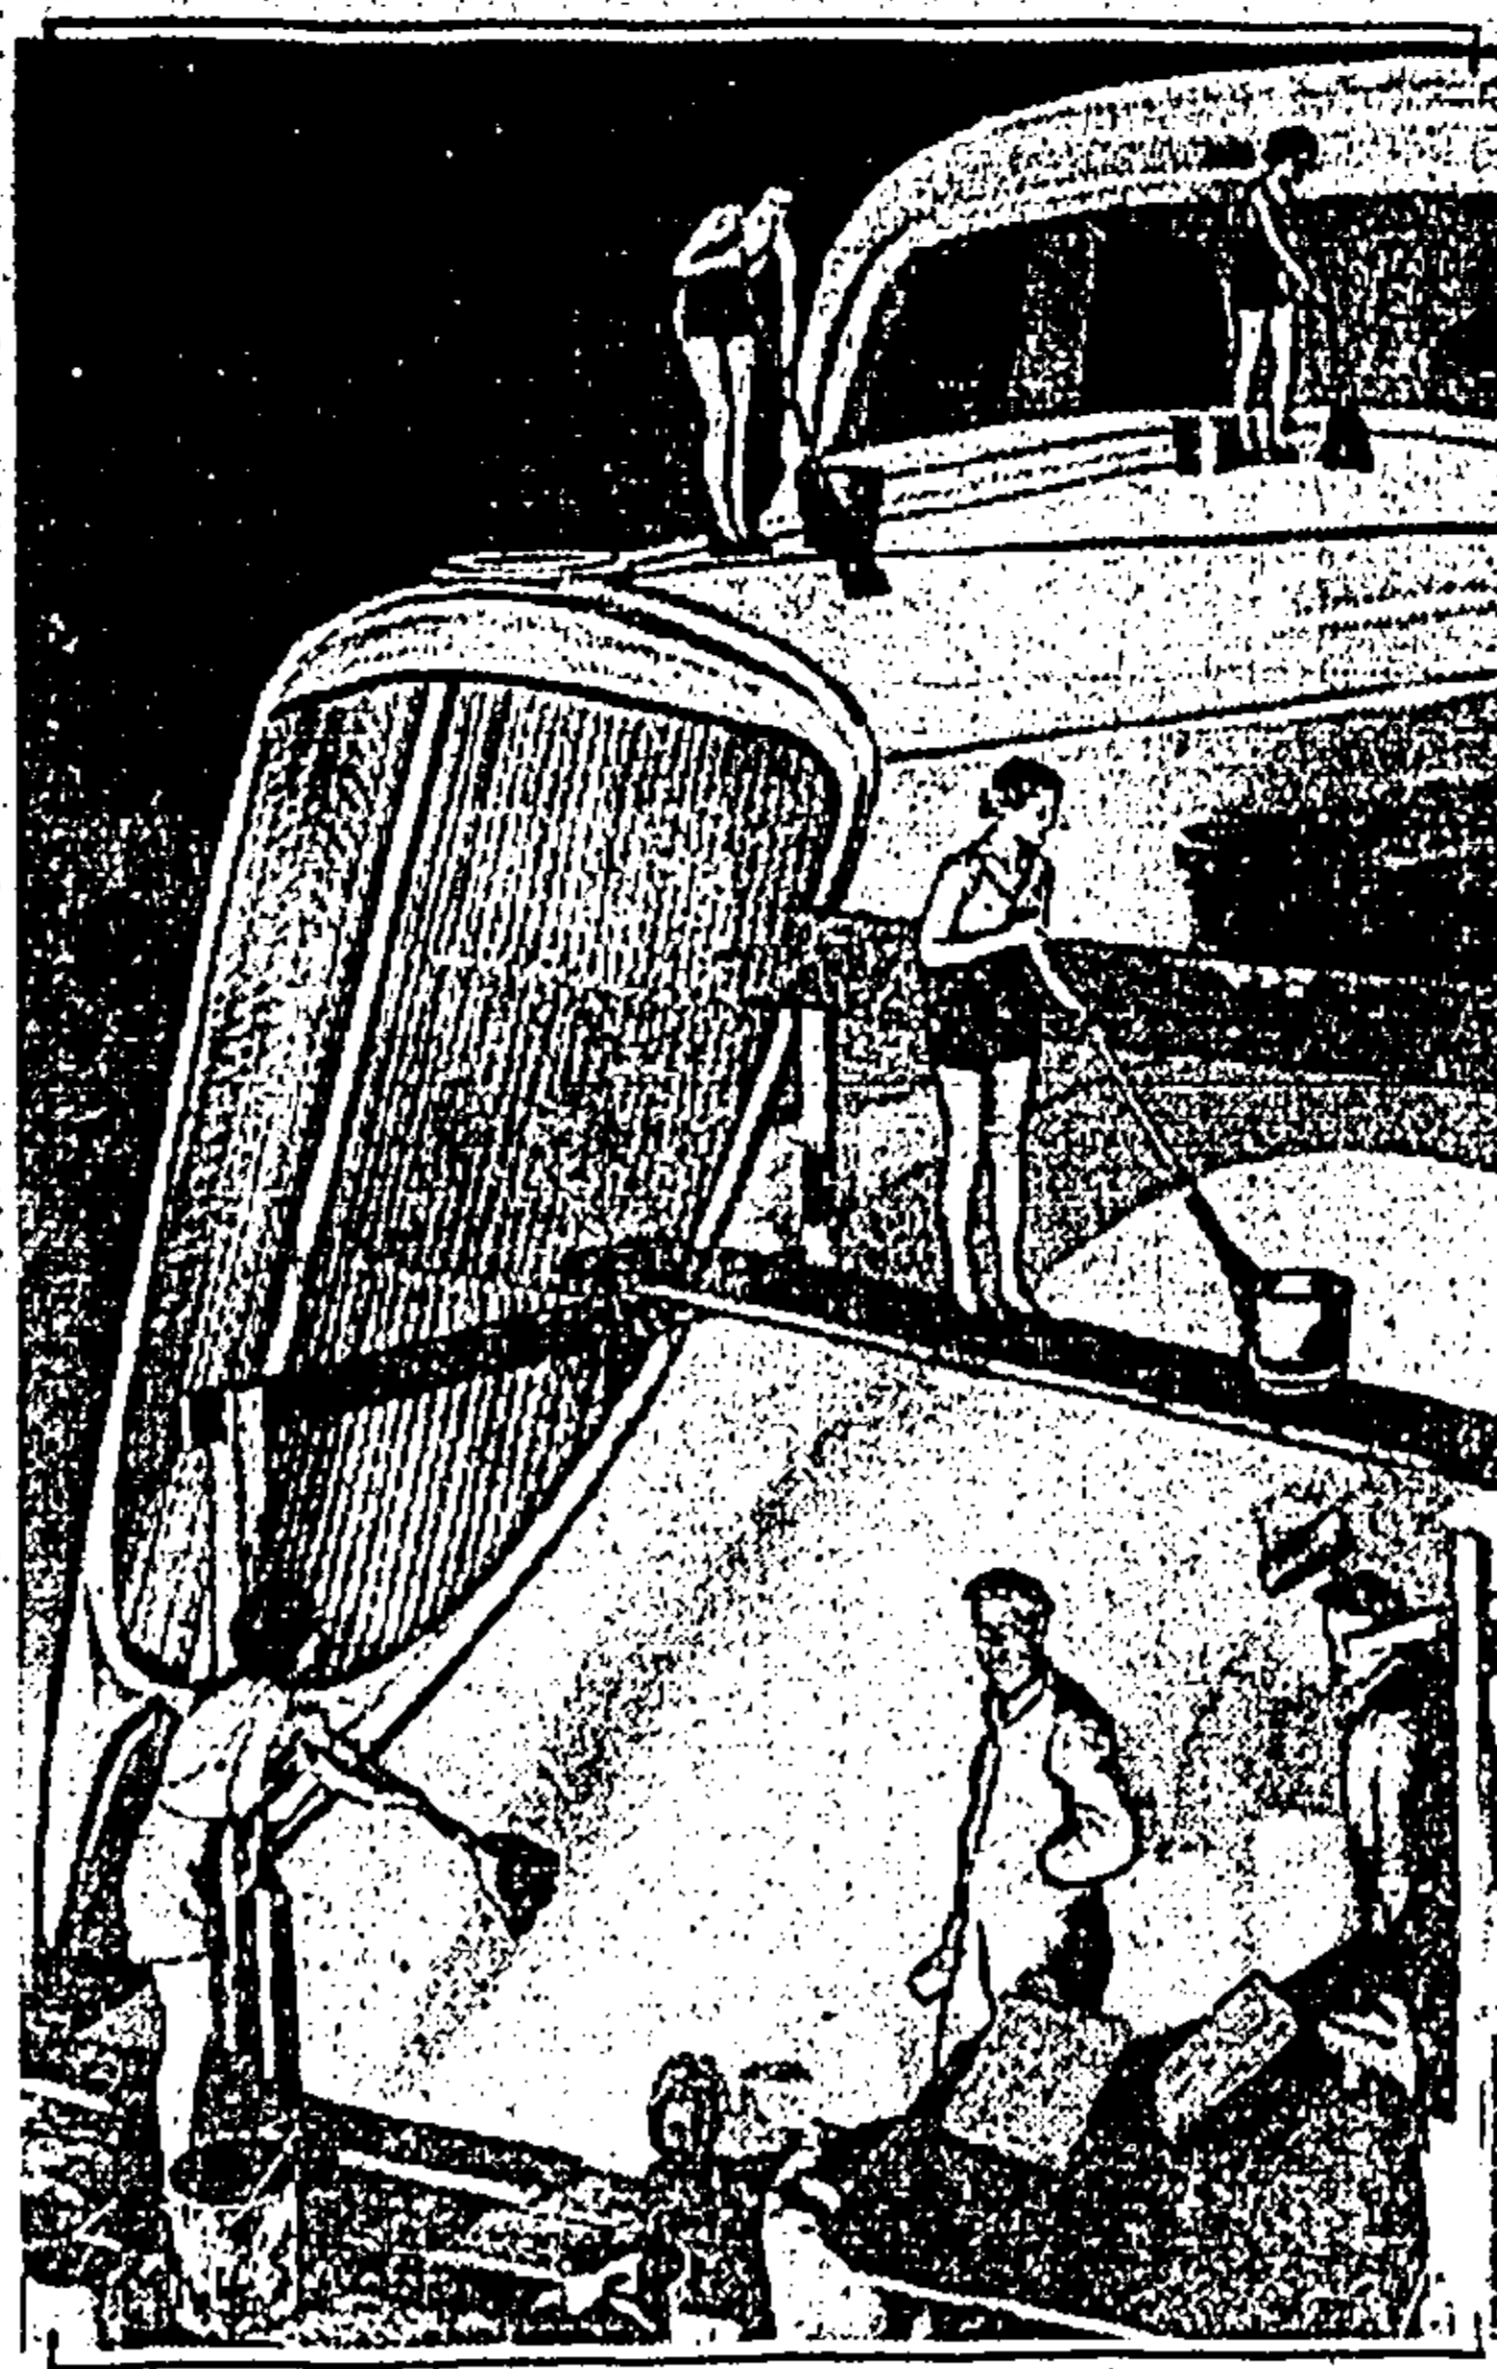

Joe E. Brown heads a cast of 1,000
gobs in his latest comedy, "Son of a Sailor," a First National picture which opens to-morrow at the Alhambra Theatre. The gobs are sailors attached to the U.S.S. Saratoga, an airplane carrier of the Pacific fleet,
on which a large portion of the picture was shot. In addition to the regular members of Uncle Sam's naval forces, a score of motion picture
gobs were also used. Jean Muir, the latest screen find, has the leading feminine role. This is the second picture she has played in, the first having been with Paul Muni in "The World Changes." There are two brothers in the picture, the other being Johnny Mack Brown, who recently appeared opposite Ruth Chat-terton in "Female." Others in important roles include Frank McHugh, Thelma Todd, Sheila Terry, George
Blackwood, Merna Kennedy, Samuel
Hinds, Noel Francis, Kenneth Thomson, Arthur Vinton and George Irving. The screen play by Al Cohn and Paul Gerrard Smith relates the adventures of an over-imaginative
gob whose indiscretions lead him into thrilling escapades from which he is only extricated by an unusual amount of dumb luck.

"The Way To Love"

Set against a background of the root-top dwellings, the small crinoids
and musical halls of the left bank of Paris, Maurice Chevalier in his newest starring picture for Paramount, "The Way To Love," is now
on exhibition at the King's Theatre.
That part of Parisian life, which offers Maurice a more simpler,
more human, "down-to-earth" role
he so earnestly likes, presents the singing French star as a guide for a tourist agency. His job, showing the "bonities" of Paris, leads him into a romance with one beauty who isn't
to be seen from the top of a sightseeing bus. Ann Dvorak—has the role. She has the job of target for a villainous knife-thrower in a carnival act. Running away from her employer, she meets Chevalier seeks refuge in his one-room flat overlooking the roofs of Paris. But their romance meets with difficulties
when the knife-thrower seeks them out and takes the girl back. In the supporting cast, in addition to Miss Dvorak, appears Edward Everett Horton, who was the star's comedy
fool in "A Bedtime Story." "3 On A Honey-moon"

With a cast that assures allure
romance and uproarious comedy, "3
On A Honey-moon," Fox Film's new screen play, comes to the King's Theatre on Tuesday. Sally Eilers, Zasu Pitts, Henrietta Crossman, Clara Street, Harvey, have the featured roles in this film,
based on the popular novel, "Promenade Deck," by Isabel Ross. The story of the film brings together the sophisticated of the big cities, as represented by Miss Eilers, and the innocence of the hinterland, as portrayed by Zasu Pitts, placing them into the maelstrom of pleasure that belongs to a trans-ocean trip. The dominant notes of the film are romance and humour and they stamp
the picture with distinct novelty.
Others in the cast are John Mack Brown, Russell Simpson and Cornelius Keefe. The production was directed by James Tinling from the screen play by Edward T. Lowe and Raymond Van Sickle.

HUGE STUDEBAKER MODEL

The "little girls" you see with the brooms and buckets above are really full sized bathing beauties. They are simply dwarfed by the gargantuan size of the Studebaker "Land Cruiser" model, which is to be the feature of Studebaker's exhibit in Chicago's 1934 Century of Progress. The colossal model, which follows faithfully the lines of Studebaker's "hit car of the year," is more than eighty feet long, twenty-eight feet high and thirty feet wide.

WATERSIDE BRAWL

AMERICAN SAILORS FIGHT
ON KOWLOON WHARF

A brawl developed on the Kowloon wharf last evening resulting in Melville MacKenzie, chief chef of the Dollar liner President Coolidge, sustaining a compound fracture just above the ankle of his left leg.

According to eye-witnesses, Mac-Kenzie was fighting on the wharf
with a saloon steward of the President Coolidge when the injury
was received.

It appears that the quarrel commenced aboard the ship shortly after 7 o'clock, and MacKenzie is stated to have challenged his opponent to "finish it on the wharf." In spite of remonstrances and warnings, the pair came down the gangway of the liner.

On his way down the gangway,
MacKenzie is alleged to have pushed
his shipmate, nearly knocking him over the side.

When the two men reached the ground they started a stand-up fight. After a few blows had been exchanged, MacKenzie was hit a hard blow on the nose, knocking him down.

As he fell, he tripped over one of the trolley rails, and when he struggled to his feet it was noticed that his left leg was badly twisted.
He collapsed again and on examination it was found that the leg was broken above the ankle.

Bleeding profusely from the nose,
and in agony from the injury to his leg, he was lifted onto a stretcher which was rushed to the scene. His leg was temporarily attended to and the ambulance arrived he was pushed along to it on one of the trolleys. He was rushed to Kowloon Hospital and detained.

The Coolidge left last evening at 11 p.m. for Manila.

QUOTAS FOR TEXTILES

CEYLON REFUSES
TO ACT

SEEKING BRITISH PREFERENCES

Colombo, June 6.

The imposition of anti-Japanese textile quotas is hanging fire owing to a difference between the Home and Ceylon Governments.

The Home Government has refused to give the assurances demanded for preferences on certain Ceylonese products.

The Ceylon Government is continuing negotiations and meanwhile it is understood that the Ceylonese counter-proposals are unsatisfactory because they do not provide a sufficiently large tariff as substitute for quotas.

British experts consider that a tariff of at least 7 cents per pound on Japanese textiles is necessary. The Ceylon Government has received a scheme from the Colonial Office for guidance, but the Board of Ministers on June 20 deferred consideration pending a reply to a request for preferences for Ceylon's export of coconuts and other commodities to British markets.—Reuter.

An elderly Chinese widow, Ching Sit, attempted at commit suicide last night by jumping into the harbour from the Mongkok Ferry wharf. She was rescued and sent to the Kowloon Hospital.

The Government is inviting tenders for piling and concrete foundations for a hangar at Kai Tak Air Port.

Births and Deaths Registry

AMENDMENTS TO ORDINANCE

The Gazette contains the draft of a Bill which repeals the Ordinances relating to the Registration of Births and Deaths and re-enacts them in a consolidated form with certain amendments.

The principal changes in the law effected by this Ordinance are:—

Appointments of deputy and assistant registrars will be made by the Governor instead of by the Registrar of Births and Deaths.

Any birth or death and not merely, as heretofore, only the births or deaths of Chinese, may be registered in a district register office.

Certified copies of entries in the district registers will be sent once a month to the General Registrar Office where they will be preserved for record.

The title of the Registrar of Births and Deaths is changed to Registrar General of Births and Deaths.

WITHIN TWO WEEKS.

Information as to births must be given within 14 days instead of within 7 days or 42 days.

No fee is charged for registration.

As hitherto, births are not to be registered after the expiration of twelve months except with consent of the Registrar General.

Any person obtaining registration of the birth of a child will be entitled to a free certificate of the birth. It is hoped that this provision, as well as the others mentioned above will encourage

LATHAM REPORT ON MISSION

TRADE OFFICERS
RECOMMENDED

ONE POSSIBLE FOR HONGKONG

Canberra, July 7.
The report of the Hon. Mr. J. G. Latham on his mission to the Far East was laid on the table of the House of Representatives to-day.

It does not favour the establishment of diplomatic relations direct with Japan, as the opinion is expressed, the British Foreign Office looks after Australia's interest quite satisfactorily.

The report recommends the appointment of Trade Commissioners to Batavia, Shanghai and Tokyo, and possibly Hongkong.

It says that the future of Australia is bound up with the East and adds that it is most improbable that Australia will do anything that might lead to war in the East.

If war occurred, it would be bound to affect Australia whether she was engaged in the war or not.

Australia's economic destiny is largely determined by her volume of trade with the East.—Reuter.

Registrations more than 14 days after birth are made in a special Post Registrar book. This will facilitate searches.

Deaths reported after 48 hours are also to be registered in post registrar books.
